

WE'RE DESIGNATED

OGWADANI:DEO
Taking Care of Our Own

As of January 29, 2018 Ogwadani:deo (Six Nations Child Welfare) successfully completed the Child Welfare Designation Process.

What does this mean for Six Nations?

Ogwadani:deo is now active for the delivery of child protection services to Onkwehonwe on the Territory, in the City of Brantford and in the Country of Brant.

What if I'm already receiving services from Brant Family and Children's Services?

A phased transfer process for existing Six Nations clients has been initiated. The process will be inclusive of both families and service providers to ensure service and/or information gaps are prevented. A protocol also exists between Brant Family and Children's Services and Ogwadani:deo to further ensure continuity of service during the transition period.

Where is Ogwadani:deo?

The agency's head office is located in Ohsweken at 2469 Fourth Line. Operating hours are Monday through Friday between 8am-9pm. An after-hours service is also in place to ensure 24-hour coverage and response to child protection concerns.

Who do I call?

During the transition period, those wishing to report new concerns of child abuse and/or neglect are asked to continue contacting Brant Family and Children's Services at (519) 753-8681 until April 1, 2018. All other reports or inquiries can be made through Ogwadani:deo at (519) 445-1864.

"Nia:weh to the community for your patience, contributions and continued involvement. We are excited to have a community-based agency that works with our children, family and existing services." ~Chief Ava Hill
