Six Nations Elected Council Passes Cannabis Law

On February 25th, 2019 the Six Nations Elected Council passed the Cannabis Law after receiving feedback gathered from a number of community engagement sessions over the fall and winter months of 2018.

The passing of this law is aimed at providing health, wellness and safety for all members of Six Nations of the Grand River while securing economic sovereignty leading to the prosperity of present and future generations.

As we move to transition to the next steps a community driven commission will be created. The community cannabis commission will be responsible for overseeing the implementation, and community interaction of this now passed law. This law will be open to future revisions as it will be an additional responsible of the commission to review the law and amend accordingly on an annual basis.

If you are interested in copies of the Six Nations Cannabis Law, they will be available at the Six Nations administrative building
